DETECTIVE DECRESCENDO AND THE HUNT

FOR FAMOUS MELODIES A Seek and Circle Game

By Barbara Meeks and Bonnie J. Kruegar

Music lovers of all ages will enjoy discovering the stories of some of music's most famous melodies as they help Detective Decrescendo with his investigations. Each of the ten "cases" in this book starts with an illustrated scene based on the melody, which is surrounded by various clues and pictures. The case is solved after all of the hidden artifacts are found. Pre and early readers can look for the hidden objects, while older students can read the facts about each melody as they search. All of the puzzles are reproducible, as is the included page of badges you can use to promote your students to the rank of Melody detective. Anyone who enjoys seek-and-find puzzles will find it hard to resist joining in the hunt!

OUTSIDE THE LINES
A New Approach to
Composing in the Music Classroom

By Mark Burrows

Grades 2-6. By taking an approach that turns composition in at the classroom both accessible and enjoyable. Each activity is designed to free your students so they can focus on expressing their creative ideas without worrying about breaking any musical "rules." Your students can compose a soundtrack, shape a river of sound, create a soundscape to accompany a famous painting, even build a cool percussion groove using box notation. But most of all, your students will learn that composition is all about communication, creating, and connecting!

WHAT'S THE SCORE?
Go Inside the Conductor's Score
for Handel's Hallelujah Chorus

By Geoff Lorenz and Kris Kropff

Grades 4+. Students in the general music classroom are exposed to many different types and forms of music, but seldom do they have the chance to see and work with a score as they do with this resource. Students go inside the score by playing games including Seek & Circle, Find & Define and Name that Note. A preparatory worksheet introducing the score is also provided, along with reproducible fact sheets about the orchestra and its instruments, Handel, and his famous oratorio. Additional suggestions for using this familiar melody and its score to strengthen rhythm reading and other music fundamentals are also provided.

JUST JAMS
A World of Rhythms
for Drums, Pitched Percussion and More

By Mark Burrows

Grades 2-6. So often, world drumming resources are more about the world and less about the drumming, but sometimes we just want the music; that's where Just Jams comes in. Taking as his starting point fundamental rhythms from various countries and regions, Mark Burrows has built engaging and accessible jams that can be used to strengthen students' rhythm skills, in drum circles, or as a change of pace on a choir concert of other performance. Speech parts for each jam are included, allowing for a teaching process of speech to body percussion to playing, as are suggestions for developing each jam into a performance piece. Diverse in its rhythms and instrumentation, Just Jams features jams for Orff instruments, Boomwhackers and sound effects in addition to those for drums and other non-pitched percussion instruments.
